

IT That Works! Launches New Web Site

Bingham Farms, Mich., Sept. 15, 2009 – IT That Works!, a Microsoft Gold Certified Partner, announced today that it has launched its new Web site, www.ittw.net. “We have realigned our services to provide secure, cost effective and robust services that are easily available to the growing cadre of companies that need to expand their Information Technology.” said Robert Breitman, CEO and President. “Our clients can now take advantage of advanced technology without having to make a capital investment.” “They no longer need to worry about technology refresh and can actually forecast and track expenses accurately.”

IT That Works! has six services: Hosted Exchange/SharePoint, Hosted Desk Top and Applications, Managed Services focused on prevention rather than just fixing problems, Data and telecommunication services, Backup and recovery, and strategic consulting. Many of the services have unique guarantees, a rare occurrence in the industry yet welcome by companies tired of dealing with money pits.

Mile Lakatosh of IT That Works! commented that “With the expanding use of digital data in today’s business climate companies need a technology strategy and obtaining it through companies like ours is simpler, safer, quicker and less costly than a do it yourself approach.” IT That Works! has the technology and support services for companies, small, growing or large, who aim to beat the competition.

Bob Breitman further stated that “If you are frustrated by your attempts to tap the power of technology to grow sales, improve customer satisfaction, or gain a competitive advantage... If you are upset that your current technology partner focuses only on the technology and not the business impact... If you are disappointed in past results and are concerned that your investment is not paying for itself... Go to our Web site, www.ittw.net, and see how we can help.”
